

ACCUSES WIFE AND BANKER IN 350 CHARGES

Frank Klemme Names
Constant A. Andrews in His Divorce Suit.

HEAD OF SAVINGS BANK.

The Co-respondent's Wife Is a Sister-in-Law of Roosevelt's Cousin.

The preliminaries are going on rapidly in the Supreme Court for a divorce that will involve some families high in the social scale, wealthy and connected with the President of the United States.

Frank Klemme, of Philadelphia, has brought suit for absolute divorce from Hannah Meta Klemme, naming Constant A. Andrews, of No. 732 Madison avenue, rich and president of the United States Savings Bank, as co-respondent.
Justice Greenbaum is considering a motion by Louis J. Vorhaus for alimony and counsel fees in behalf of Mrs.
Klemme, and to-day Leo H. Brillles, in behalf of Mrs. Klemme, and Stephen M.
Yeamans, in behalf of Mr. Klemme, submitted papers to Justice Newburger in an effort to frame issues in the case.

Meanwhile Justice Amend has granted an order for the examination by a commission of Maud Henly, who was a servant in the Andrews household, but is now living in Charlotte, N. C.

350 Charges.
Mr. Klemme, who alleges that his wife drove him out of New York, is an ex-accountant in Philadelphia, and it is said that he has made 350 distinct charges against his wife and Banker Andrews, covering every day for April 1, 1905, to May, 1906. These are the issues to be boiled down by Justice New-burger to something definite to submit to a jury, for the case is to be tried by a jury before Justice Truax next month.
The witnesses will include Nannie V.
Roosevelt, wife of John E. Roosevelt, a cousin of the President, of No. 676 Maunson avenue.

Constant A. Andrews's wife is a sister of Mrs. Roosevelt. She was Blanche Landgraf Vance. They are daughters of the late Samuel R. Vance. She was the widow of Louis T. Brewster, with an income of $15,000 from his estate, when she was married to Mr. Andrews on June 17, 1891.

Two years ago Mrs. Andrews developed insanity, fancying she was a court favorite of King Edward, and she was placed in the custody of the State. She was released after a year, and she was married to Mr. Andrews on June 17, 1891.
The Klemmes had been married twelve years. Klemme was arrested on a visit to the city and taken to police court on his wife's charge of abandoning her and her two children.

RECTOR WINS FIGHT TO CLOSE UP DIVE

Police and Mayor Failing, Rev.
Huntington Successfully Appeals to Governor.

There is no business doing to-day and perhaps never will again in the Raines law hotel, a notorious resort at No. 91 Fourth avenue, directly opposite Grace Church Parish House. The place as hotel of the character it has been in the past was closed yesterday as a direct result of a warfare projected against the resort by the Rev. Dr.
Huntington, rector of Grace Church.
It is now stated that the work of opposition was no carefully planned and worked out that unless the present Excise law is amended this and other similarly closed places can never again do business.

For months Dr. Huntington had been trying to find a means to close the place. He had appealed to the precinct police under Capt. Shaw and getting no satisfaction from that quarter other than promises which were not sustained by subsequent action, he addressed a complaint to the Mayor. The latter also promised that the place would be closed, and took steps toward that end. But nothing came of the complaint other than to provoke a visit from Capt.
Shaw, who, calling upon Dr. Huntington, again said that he would proceed against the hotel.

Still no result, Dr. Huntington appealed to Gov. Hughes and Mayor A. N.
Clement, State Commissioner of Excise. These latter conferred, with the result that proceedings to show cause why his license should not be revoked were instituted against Proprietor Henry Bader.
Then Capt. Shaw got busy and induced the owners of the property to bring ejectment suits against Bader. This, too, was done. Bader now declares he has lost and will convert the property for other use.

GROGER FIGHTS OFF ROBBERS IN STORE

Armed Crooks No Match for Leisinger, Who Wields Milk
Can Cover Successfully.

Henry Leisinger, a grocer, at Warren and Steuben streets, Jersey City, was attacked by two robbers in his store today and badly beaten.
Leisinger had just opened his store about dawn, when two tall men entered.
One of them asked the grocer for some milk. Leisinger was handing over a barrel of bread to comply when he was suddenly struck from behind with a blackjack. The grocer's derby hat saved him from severe injury and he gave battle to the two men.

The three fought to the street. Reverend times the grocer felled one of the other of them with his fist. Then one of the men called out:
"I can't put him out. See your gun." A revolver was stuck into Leisinger's face, but he continued to fight, and the man with the weapon struck him in the mouth, knocking out several teeth.
Leisinger seized the cover of a milk can and using it as a shield and club put the men to flight. Then he got back to his grocery and felt unconscious.
The police have no clue to the robbers.

SHOT HIMSELF IN THE SNOW AT MIDNIGHT.

Effects of a Sunstroke Caused Agony Too Great for Steinway Man to Bear.

Louis N. Schlegel, fifty-three years old, of No. 85 Albert street, Long Island City, is dying in the St. John's Hospital of Queens, from a bullet wound over the right eye self-inflicted. He was found unconscious on the snow at midnight in a lonely part of the Shore road. A revolver was buried under him and a quantity of cartridges were found in his pockets.
He lived with his wife and two children in a pretty cottage in the Steinway section of Long Island City. Mrs.
Schlegel said today that he suffered a sunstroke last summer and has been ever since.

Knelt During Son's Trial

A mother's prayers helped save thirteen-year-old Joseph Gleason from a possible term in the Reformatory. The boy lives at No. 47 Grove street, Jersey City, and was tried before Judge Blair and a jury in the Hudson County Court of General Sessions, Jersey City, on a charge of having held up and robbed several newboys.
During her son's trial, Mrs. Margaret Gleason, the boy's mother, knelt in silent prayer in the court-room, and the jury, after being out twenty minutes, brought back a verdict of not guilty.

STOLEN BOY CARRIED AWAY ON RIVER BOAT

That Woman Was One of Kidnappers Is Also Theory in Marvin Case.

DOVER, Del., March 8.—There is no doubt in the minds of the army of detectives and farmers who are searching for Horace N. Marvin, Jr., son of Dr. Horace Marvin, who disappeared mysteriously from the Marvin farm, on the 15th inst., on Monday, that he is in the hands of kidnappers.
There is every reason to believe also that one of the kidnappers was a woman disguised as a man. It is the theory of the searchers that the boy was grabbed from the haystack where he was playing, a short distance from his home, and taken on board a small sloop, which sailed down Delaware bay.

This theory is strengthened by the report that a mysterious sloop was seen in the bay on Monday afternoon. It was reported by the marine station near Reedy Island. Those on board acted so strangely as to attract the attention of the men in charge of the station. Efforts are being made to trace this sloop, which was headed toward Wilmington.

Hide Near Victim's Home.
This mysterious sloop was seen by the marine reporters an hour after the boy disappeared.

It is believed a mysterious woman and man were hiding in a shed within half a mile of the Marvin home on the day of the disappearance. Mrs.
Charles Woodhall, whose husband formerly owned the Marvin farm, went to this cabin yesterday in the search for the missing child. The cabin has not been occupied since last summer.
Mrs. Woodhall found it had been broken open, and a broken down bed in one corner occupied. On the floor was found part of a clean ruffie of a woman's skirt.

"I saw two mysterious persons near the cabin last Sunday night," said Mrs.
Woodhall to-day. "It was growing dusk, and I could not see them plainly, but one looked like a woman. Mr. Woodhall, at the time, was at Dr. Marvin's home, and when he came in I asked him what he had been doing at the cabin. He replied he had not been near it. Then I took it for granted that I had been watching two tramps, until the kidnapping of Dr. Marvin's boy."

Dr. Marvin is firmly of the belief that one of the kidnappers was a woman.
He believes, also, that exaggerated stories of his wealth prompted the stealing of the boy.
A detective one of the kidnappers was a woman because of the stories I have heard," said the physician. "Then, too, I believe the kidnapping of a woman child, at least, have one associated with them as the child would be easier to hide."

Mrs. Swift, grandmother of the missing boy, who was taken to St. Louis, Mo., in a motor car, said to-day that she had several months ago, told to-day of a vision she had of the boy and making for the swamp. This dream of Tommy's disappearance, she said, was the night after the child disappeared.

The report that the doctor had offered a reward of $200 for information as to the whereabouts of the boy, was starting that it was his belief that such a move would be really inadvisable because of the danger to locate the child have been exhausted.

YOUNG WOMAN WANTS TO SING IN SNOW STORM

In Summer Costume,
Creates Sensation
at Bridge.

A woman of attractive face and figure but dressed in extraordinary fashion—a thin, white summer skirt, low shoes and a light cloak, all of good material—being strangely out of conformity with the snow storm then raging, caused a sensation at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge early to-day. Carrying two hand satchels, she dashed with remarkable speed and lightness of step from a Fifth avenue elevated train which had just drawn into the terminal, and reaching the long descent of steps to Park Row, fled down them as if terrified by pursuit.

She continued across Park Row through the driving snow, and turning abruptly, fled up the tracks of the Third avenue surface road, keeping ahead of a car trailing behind. She turned again and retraced her path down the opposite rail and then halted breathless at the bridge entrance. Here she was taken in charge by Policeman Nicholas O'Neill, who had attempted previously to overtake her.

"But I can sing and sing charmingly, my friends tell me," she said. She spoke almost incoherently, and in a half-courteous manner. Then she wanted to sing to prove she could.
By careful questioning O'Neill got from her that her name is Hattie Rosenheim, twenty-five years of age, of No.
321 Sixth avenue, the Bridge Hotel.
Dr. Burroughs, of the Hudson Street hospital, removed the woman in an ambulance to Bellevue, where she was detained for further observation.

PISTOL TO ENFORCE A DEMAND FOR $20

Costello Wanted Money in a Hurry, but Lupitz Called the Police.

"I want $20 and I want it quick," said a man as he stepped up to the bar of Louis Lupitz's saloon at No.
194 Broadway early to-day.
"On your way, you're dreaming," replied Lupitz as he fondled a bungstarter.

"Well, I'll be back in just an hour, and if you know what's good for you you'll have the money for me." Lupitz had forgotten the incident, but it was suddenly recalled when he looked up from behind the bar an hour later and found himself peeping into the music of a revolver with the man at the other end of it.

"Take that twenty now," said the robber.
Lupitz dropped behind the bar and let out a yell of alarm that brought Policeman Kearns rushing in with the man at the other end of it.
The captive gave his name as Peter Costello, and said he lived at No. 125 West Sixty-third street.
Magistrate Green, in the West 84th Court, later held him in $1000 bail for examination on a charge of attempted burglary.

YOUNG POLICEMAN GETS A HIGHWAYMAN.

Saw Two Men Holding Up a Storekeeper and Captured One.

Policeman Dolan, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, who has been on the force only five days, was the proud patrolman in the Harlem Police Court to-day when he arraigned before Magistrate Moss two highwaymen.

The prisoners were William Drennan, twenty-one years old, of No. 350 West One Hundred and Sixteenth street, and Joseph Hazzard, twenty-seven years old, of No. 21 West One Hundred and Twenty-first street. Dolan saw them holding up Nathan Livingston, a storekeeper, of No. 218 Eighth avenue, at 21st avenue and 21st street, on Thursday night, last night, and caught Hazzard after he had killed the storekeeper. Then Policeman Dolan joined him, and they persuaded their captives to tell the names of their partners, and led them to their home. The thugs hadn't got any money from Livingston, but they had intended to rob him. Hazzard was held in $2,000 bail each for the Grand Jury.

"PUT TO DEATH" ONCE, AGAIN FACES SENTENCE.

Russian Left for Dead After Legal Execution and Nursed Back to Life Is Rearrested.

RIGA, Russia, March 8.—The remarkable case of Anton Lust, the Estonian revolutionist, who, after once being legally put to death, is facing a second death sentence for pillaging an estate during the insurrection in the Baltic provinces, will be referred to the lower house of Parliament.

Lust was arrested in January, 1906, for taking part in the sacking of the estate of a German baron. He was tried by drumhead court-martial, was shot on the spot and left for dead. His relatives, however, found that he was alive, spirited him off and nursed him back to health. Lust was rearrested and is to be again tried for pillage.
